

Inaugural Sir James Rowland Air Power Seminar

Air Power and National Security:
The Strategic Dimension

13 October 2016
ADFA

CALL FOR PAPERS

The establishment of the Sir James Rowland Air Power Seminar is an initiative of the Australian Centre for the Study of Armed Conflict and Society, UNSW and the RAAF's Air Power Development Centre.

The seminar series has been established to honour the contributions of Air Marshal Sir James Rowland - the first engineering officer to serve as the Chief of the Air Staff and a major contributor to Australian thinking on the strategic use of air power. The aim of the seminars is a broadened understanding of the origins, evolution, application and depiction of air power in the national interest.

Some of the themes to be explored include:

- . The Strategic Dimension of Air Power in Securing the Nation
- . Future Force Structures
- . Air Force Culture
- . Navy, Army and Air Power
- . Dynamics of Developing Air Power Doctrine
- . Emerging Air Power Threats
- . Air Power and Strategy
- . Ethics of Air Power
- . Technology and the Evolution of Air Power
- . Space and Cyber Power
- . People in Air Power

CALL FOR PAPERS

Proposals for presentations for the inaugural seminar are now being called. Proposals on one of the topics above, or a related air power/air force topic should be submitted to acsacs@adfa.edu.au by 8 August 2016. Proposals should include a title, 300 word abstract and one page curriculum vitae. If successful, a 2500 paper and 45 minute presentation will be required. The papers will be published at the conclusion of the seminar.
